I CARE Core Skills

Inquire
- “How are you doing?”
- “Tell me more about that…”
- “I notice . . . (pattern, change, content, intuition)”

Connect
- Remove distractions
- Pay attention to your body language

Acknowledge
- Microphone and spotlight
- WIG (What I Got) – summarizing what the speaker says
- “It sounds like…”
- “I’m hearing that…”

Respond
- “I feel concerned about you.”
- “I want to get you the help you need.”

Explore
- “Can I give you some advice/suggestions?”
- “Have you thought of ways to cope with this?”
- “Have you considered talking to someone about this?”
Identifying Stress, Distress, and Crisis

- If you are debating between two levels (stress vs. distress or distress vs. crisis), seek more information. If you cannot obtain more information, assume the more severe.
- Call Student Counseling (215-898-7021) 24/7 to consult with a professional if you are uncertain.
- Involve others (friends, house staff, faculty and staff) if you are concerned.

Stress
- Bad mood (irritability, impatience, sadness)
- Lacking energy
- Difficulty sleeping
- Inability to relax
- Lack of enjoyment
- Physical complaints (headaches, muscle tension, digestive discomfort)

Distress
- Sudden changes from regular behavior patterns (sociability, talkativeness, eating, sleeping, partying, emotionality, capacity for work, substance abuse)
- Deterioration of work
- Multiple absences
- Expressions of intense emotions (rage, anxiety, hopelessness, loneliness...)
- Deterioration in appearance or hygiene
- Significant weight change
- Self-disclosure of distress
- Upsetting events (family problems, death of a loved one, end of a relationship)
- Concern expressed by close others
- Your instinct

Crisis
- Suicidal statements or attempts
- Homicidal threats or attempts
- Extreme emotions (uncontrolled rage, anxiety to the point of panic attacks)
- Inability to communicate (garbled speech, making no sense)
- Loss of contact with reality (seeing/hearing things that aren’t there, bizarre troubling beliefs)
- Experiencing trauma (experiencing injury, rape)
- Previous suicide attempt(s)
- History of alcohol and substance abuse
- Impulsive or aggressive tendencies
- Easy access to lethal methods
Crisis Intervention

DO’S

- When someone’s life is in imminent danger, you should call Penn Police (215-573-3333) or 911 if you are off-campus.
- Call Student Counseling 215-898-7021 (24/7) to consult with a clinician if you are uncertain.
- If you are concerned about someone, it is okay to ask someone if they are thinking about hurting or killing themselves or someone else.
- Communicate your concern and desire to keep them safe.
- Develop a plan; call others in to help.
- Focus on reducing immediate danger and connecting to a higher level of care.
- Send a clear message: “You are not alone.”

DON’TS

- Don’t leave the other person alone (unless your safety is threatened).
- Don’t attempt to resolve longstanding issues.
- Don’t make promises of confidentiality.
- Don’t debate the other person’s choices or challenge for shock effects.
- Don’t minimize the other person’s problems.
- Don’t assume you know the person.
Making a Referral to Student Counseling

When to Contact Student Counseling:

- Questions: You have questions about Student Counseling’s services, whether a referral is appropriate, or how to make a referral
- Consultation: You need help assisting a student who has resisted your referral efforts
- Concerns: You are concerned about a student (E.g. the student is talking or behaving in a way that is unsafe, bizarre, or unusual).

Things to Remember (The 3 C’s):

- Commitment: You want students to know that you are committed to helping them and that you are not "dumping them off onto someone else."

- Collaboration: Successful referrals result from joint decisions made between the student and the person helping the student. You are not responsible for the choices the student makes. You can only provide insight to help motivate the student to focus on improving their well-being.

- Confidentiality: Student Counseling has an obligation to protect a student’s confidentiality. However, you can follow up with the student to see if they followed through with a referral.

Tips on How to Refer a Student to Student Counseling:

- Show that you care, but discuss your limitations: E.g. "I can support you with this, but I think that a clinician at Student Counseling can be most helpful to you in addressing this problem."

- Be specific about why you are referring a student: E.g. "Student Counseling has some people who are really good at helping students address family problems." (Rather than, "Why don't you go over to Student Counseling?")
○ Make a personal referral: E.g. “I’ve met _____ at Student Counseling. I find this person very easy to talk to. Maybe I can give that person a call to help guide us through the process.”

○ Offer to call or walk with the student to Student Counseling: E.g. “Would it be okay if we call Student Counseling together/walk over together?”

○ Make a plan for follow up: E.g. ”Is it okay if I'll check with you on Monday to see how your meeting went?”

How to Refer a Reluctant Student to Student Counseling:

○ Explore reasons for unwillingness:
  ○ E.g. “What might be getting in the way?”
  ○ E.g. “Tell me about your thoughts/perceptions/prior experiences with Student Counseling or other professional counselors?”

○ Listen and express concern:
  ○ E.g. ”I feel concerned about you.”

○ Explore need for alternatives
  ○ E.g. “Can we think of other ways you could feel supported?”

○ Normalize help seeking
  ○ E.g. “A lot of students go to Student Counseling for all kinds of things. No issue is too big or too small.”

○ Seek consultation
  ○ If you feel worried, call Student Counseling for support. Your self-care is also valued.

○ Follow up
  ○ Follow up with the student and/or Student Counseling to continuity of care
  ○ Following up also shows you are still dedicated to the student and it is not, “out of sight, out of mind.”

Self-Care Worksheet

The following worksheet for assessing self-care is not exhaustive, merely suggestive. When you are finished, look for patterns in your responses. Are you more active in some areas of self-care, but ignore others? Listen to your internal dialogue about self-care. What do you want to include more in your life?

Rate the following areas according to how well you think you are doing:
3 = I do this well (e.g., frequently)
2 = I do this OK (e.g., occasionally)
1 = I barely or rarely do this
0 = I never do this
? = This never occurred to me

Physical Self-Care
___ Eat regularly (e.g. breakfast, lunch, and dinner)
___ Eat healthily
___ Exercise
___ Get medical care when needed
___ Take time off when sick
___ Dance, swim, walk, run, play sports, or do some other fun physical activity
___ Take time to be sexual - with myself, with a partner
___ Get enough sleep
___ Wear clothes I like

Psychological Self-Care
___ Take day trips or mini-vacations
___ Make time away from telephones, email, and the Internet
___ Make time for self-reflection
___ Notice my inner experience - listen to my thoughts, beliefs, attitudes, feelings
___ Have my own personal psychotherapy
___ Write in a journal
___ Attend to minimizing stress in my life
___ Engage my intelligence in a new area, e.g., go to an art show, sports event, theatre
___ Say no to extra responsibilities

Emotional Self-Care
___ Spend time with others whose company I enjoy
___ Stay in contact with important people in my life
___ Give myself affirmations; praise myself
___ Re-read favorite books, re-view favorite movies
___ Identify comforting activities, objects, people, places and seek them out
___ Allow myself to cry
___ Find things that make me laugh
____ Express my outrage in social action, letters, donations, marches, protests

Spiritual Self-Care

____ Make time for reflection
____ Spend time in nature
____ Find a spiritual connection or community
____ Cherish my optimism and hope
____ Be aware of non-material aspects of life
____ Be open to not knowing
____ Identify what is meaningful to me and notice its place in my life
____ Meditate
____ Pray
____ Make gratitude lists
____ Contribute to causes in which I believe
____ Read inspirational literature or listen to inspirational talks or music

Relationship Self-Care

____ Schedule regular dates with my partner
____ Schedule regular activities with my children
____ Make time to see friends
____ Call, check on, or see my relatives
____ Spend time with my companion animals
____ Stay in contact with faraway friends
____ Make time to reply to personal emails and letters; send holiday cards
____ Allow others to do things for me
____ Ask for help when I need it
____ Share a fear, hope, or secret with someone I trust

Workplace or Professional Self-Care

____ Take a break during the workday (e.g., lunch)
____ Take time to chat with co-workers or peers
____ Make quiet time to complete tasks
____ Identify projects or tasks that are exciting and rewarding
____ Create balance in the workday or school day
____ Arrange workspace so it is comfortable and comforting
____ Get regular supervision or consultation
